

PROFESSIONAL DIPLOMA OF SKIN CANCER MEDICINE

ONLINE

Skin cancer is one of the most common dermatological conditions seen in general practice – and it is not overly complex to manage if you have the right skill set. Due to a lack of dermatologists, general practitioners play a vital role in managing the skin cancer epidemic and providing effective care to patients with skin cancer concerns.

The final course in the three-part pathway, the online Professional Diploma of Skin Cancer Medicine will extend your knowledge required to manage more complex patient cases and rare skin cancers. The course is ideal for medical professionals who wish to gain the optimum knowledge to manage primary care patients with a multitude of skin cancer concerns, making you a favourable referral option for your colleagues. You will learn from the world's leading skin cancer experts, including Professors Harald Kittler (Austria), Richard Usatine (USA), Iris Zalaudek (Austria), Luc Thomas (France), and other thought leaders in this field.
